

A Moment on the Lips (Dix Dodd Mystery #3.5) by N.L. Wilson

I read this novella as a fill in after finishing a serious crime novel too soon before bed time and because I had found the previous books in this series pretty decent mysteries with lots of humour. However this book has none of the humour of the earlier books and not really much of a mystery plot or investigation. It was short enough to work as time filler and it was not bad enough for me to abort but I won't read any more in this series unless they're freebies or loaners.
